A Word to Republicans

The hope of the party lies in the expansio of a stateart Republican press. The Republican who reads or otherwise helps to support a Democratic paper to the exclusion of one of his own party newspapers is untrue to the Republican cause.

Unanimously subscribed to by the National Republican League.

J. S. CLARKSON, President. A. B. HUMPHREY, Secretary.

THE President's proclamation is Protective Tariff on cholera.

SOME ingenious campaign buttonmaker could assure himself a fortune by a device of a "shipmaster" for Democratic patriots of war.

"CLEVE" has been asked to visit "Steve" at Bloomington, Ill. The great at Baltimore last April, declared that struggle to carry Buzzard's Bay at Bloomington shows no signs of relaxation.

THE Canadian position was that they had no right to discriminate against American traffic through the Welland Canal, but it was not convenient to stop doing so until next season.

THE Democratic Legislatures which enacted gerrymanders in Michigan, Wisconsin and New York were apparently believers in the celebrated sentiment expressed by the Hon. TIMOTHY J. CAMP-BELL of New York: "The Constitution don't cut no figure."

IT is said, on excellent British Freetrade authority, that GROVER CLEVELAND has given certain assurances to Democratic leaders in New York state as to the CLEVELAND AND course which he HIS PROMISES. would pursue in the event of his election to the Presidency. According to the uncontradicted statement, which there is every reason to believe, CLEVELAND has promised to be guided in New York affairs by Messrs. CROKER and SHEEHAN.

Exactly in what form CLEVELAND has given this pledge we do not assume to know. If verbally it is worthless, and has been completed. in giving it, whether verbally or in writing, he has stamped himself as un-worthy of the support of honorable citizens. But, even in writing, would the is viewed by the wise heads of that off bough, and as it dies sflence is unpledge be carried out?

for a second term. No political prom- fraud and unconstitutional. ise or engagement could have been made with more solemnity or publicity. Yet that promise was forgotten and ignored. Of course he had a right to run for a second term if he saw fit. The that a sanitary inspection of every resi-Republican party, which re-elected LIN-COLN and GRANT and proposes to reelect HARRISON, is not opposed to a second term for a faithful and capable No attention will be paid to anonymous Chief Magistrate, although decidedly opposed to it for such a President as GROVER CLEVELAND. tagious diseases is seriously embarrassing the Treasury Department, by making it difficult to undertake work on a greater scale than the funds to which it is now limited allow. The Secretary, however, intends to authorize every expenditure found to be necessary, and will find some way to pay the expense. What makes the matter utterly inexcusable on the part of the House is the fact that notice had been received by the Western World that cholera was on its march from Asia when the appropriation was reduced.

The samy short-sighted policy was adopted in regard to the city of Washington. The appropriations for the Health Department were cut so low that it is now impossible to give the city such a cleaning as it needs to put the seat of the Government in proper condition to resist the plague. The Health Officer finds himself utterly helpless in the present emergency.

It is bad enough to fail to provide means to guard against contagion at any point, but it is a monstrous oversight to neglect the National Capital, since, in case of visitation of cholera, the suffering and death would be not only personal to those who might be victims and to their friends, but the whole machinery of the public business would be unavoidably deranged. There may be a very serious side to this chapter of Democratic economy.

GENERAL FRANCIS A. WALKER, after hearing WILLIAM DUDLEY of Indiana infer" that President HARRISON had "grossly and intentionally violated all CIVIL SERVICE RE- principles of civil FORM COMPLIMENTS, service reform," has declared that he will vote for CLEVE LAND, " for he is better than his party." How the short haired Democracy must hate those words, even as they hate civil service reform itself, says The New York Press. But there is a good deal of difference between Mr. FOULKE's unfair philippic and the concessions which two other great Cleveland Mugwumps have made to President Harrison's civil service re form results. She report of the Committee on Resolutions of the National Civil Service Reform League, read by its probable author, the Hon. CARL SCHURZ, before the meeting of that organization President HARRISON had appointed an of the vinegar in carbonic acid, the "admirable Civil Service Commission, which had enforced the requirements of the law," that it had "awakened in the Southern states confidence in its honest operation," that the present administration had "everywhere stimulated a wholesome apprehension" of reform, and that 'much had been accomplished for reform by the action of the Secretary of proportion of carbon. It will also the Navy during this administration." And Lucius B. Swift of Indiana a few weeks later, as reported in The Evening Post itself, said: "Civil service reform has made greater progress during the last three years than ever before, and in the execution of the law there

MIXED METAPHORS.

An Example of Gross Errors, Ancient and

Almost everyone who writes many sentences even in a familiar and epistolary way employs certain figures of speech. It is habitual and instinctive to make use of words in a metaphorical sense; that is, to set forth a thought and make plain a meaning by bringing in a sensible object or suggesting a visi-ble act which bears some resemblance to it, says the Youth's Companion.

Often we become so thoroughly accus tomed to the use of a term in its metaphorical sense that we forget that it has a sensible or material meaning apart from the figure of speech, and when we forget this we are in danger of 'mixing our metaphora."

When Sir Boyle Roche made his fa-mous speech, "I smell a rat, I see him floating in the air; but mark me, sir, I will nip him in the bud," his ideas were clear enough, but he lost sight of rats, air and buds in the thought that was in his mind. If the reader also could lose sight of them this passage might appear eloquent. But they obtrude themselves very humorously upon the

The following was the peroration of an orator at a political meeting not long

"The time has come when we must leave off voting for ornamental principles and vote to put bread and butter in our pockets!"

A scarcely less mixed up series of metaphors than Sir Boyle's was recently employed by a newspaper in an Ameri-can city. Several aldermen had been accused of accepting bribes and the newspapers said with reference to the affair:

"It is reasonable to expect that such of his associates as are innocent of such a crime will leave no stone unturned to purge themselves of all suspicion and exhaust every expedient to smoke the rascals out!"

AN AMUSING EXPERIMENT.

Lilliputian Naval Engagement Imitated by Means of Chalk and Vinegar.

An amusing experiment of a lilliputian naval battle can be made with white chalk and the ordinary table vinegar. Model, say, a dozen chunks of chalk to the resemblance of ships, planing the bottom evenly, and using matches for masts, smokestacks and turrets. The rival forces you can distinguish by coloring the enemy's ships with black ink, leaving your own white. Having placed them in a pan or plate close to an imaginary dividing line, pour a good quantity of vinegar between the chalk sticks. Instantly you will hear an audible seething, like the hissing of shells in actual warfare, while ships as if puffing up steam will begin to move forward in slow revolutions, leaving behind them streaks of foam such as are observed in the wake of moving vessels. When meeting at the dividing line they will have attained quite a respectable speed, bumping and cuffing together in the endeavor to push one another furthest from the dividing line. The engagement often proves an exciting one. Of course the side has won which has the largest number of ships nearest the center after the af-

The chemical solution of this seeming mystery is quite simple, explains Harper's Young People. Chalk, being WANTED-Man to take care of office and largely carbon, combines with the acid same gases that cause the effervescence of most mineral waters. The gases rise to the surface of the vinegar in small bubbles of sufficient strength to cause the current which turns the chalk.

Since the patriotic youth will want to see the American boats win, it will be well for him to remember that the best quality of chalk contains the largest prove of advantage to plane the chalk carefully, so as to permit it to glide

HOW ANIMALS BEAR PAIN.

The Mute and Patient Suffering of the Lower Orders When Wounded.

One of the most pathetic things, says the Yankee Blade, is the way in which the animal kingdom endures suffering. Take horses, for instance, in battle. After the first shock of the wound they

They bear the pain with a mute, wondering endurance, and if at night you hear a wild groan from the battlefield, it comes from their loneliness, their loss of human companionship which seems absolutely indispensable to the comfort

The dog will carry a broken leg for days wistfully but uncomplainingly. The cat, stricken with a stick or stone or caught in some trap from which it gnaws its way to freedom, crawls to some secret place and bears in silence pain which we could not endure.

Sheep and other cattle meet the thrust of the butcher's knife without a sound, and even common poultry endure inbroken, save by the patter on the leaves of its own life blood. The wounded deer speeds to some thick brake, and in pitiful submission waits mons. There is no moan or sound of pain, and the deflant look never fades from its eyes until the lids close over

Women, as a rule, float very poorly, though there are a few brilliant excep-tions. They lack confidence, and do not straighten their muscles or extend their limbs rigidly. Nearly all the floating the women do is with the arms of their escorts supporting them at the head and back. It seems that the majority prefer to do it that way

Wonderful Echoes

In a cave in the Pantheon the guide by striking the flaps of his coat makes a noise equal to that produced by firing a twelve-pound cannon. In the cave of Smellin, near Viborg, Finland, a stone thrown down a certain abyss makes a reverberating echo which sounds like the dying wall of some wild snimal.
